LUXURIES HIGH IN GREAT BRITAIN BUT ARE FREELY BOUGHT

Peaches Are Selling for $1.90 Each and Supply Goes Quickly

DEMAND FOR AUTOS

Strawberries Bring $5.25 A Box Or At Rate of 25 Cents Each

(Note: An investigation reveals that while prices for luxuries are high in Great Britain the Britons are buying freely because they are making money, H. R. Knickerbocker writes in the second article of his series on "British Recovery.")

Peaches are quoted at $1.90 each and you have to be on hand early to get them because the supply does not last long.

Strawberries sell at $5.25 a box or approximately at the rate of twenty-five cents for each strawberry.

To get one of the best automobiles for which you plunk down $15,000 you must place your order six months to a year ahead.

And this continues all through the list, even though Great Britain is taking care of 2,200,000 unemployed. Knickerbocker tells us how this is being done.—I. N. S.)

LONDON, June 14—(INS)—Peaches sell in Piccadilly for $1.90 apiece. If you want to buy them you must get up early. The best are soon sold out and then you can get the next best for $1.65 apiece.

Britons buy them at these prices. For Britons are making money.

Go into the shop of Blank and Blank, purveyors to his Majesty the King. They have a large establishment on Piccadilly with the entire first floor front devoted to delicate foods for the ladies and gentlemen of the West End. Ask for peaches.

"Here is a very nice peach," responds the salesgirl, displaying a mediocre little fruit about half the size of a full grown Georgia or Elberta peach. "These," she said, "are $1.65 each. I'm sorry but our best peaches are sold out. We will have some more tomorrow. Yes, $1.90 apiece. The best British peaches, but they are soon gone. It would be wise to order in advance."

Here, too, are strawberries at a guinea a box. A guinea is $5.25. The box holds twenty strawberries. This makes the price a little over twenty-five cents per strawberry.

There are also alligator pears at $1.25 apiece, and melons, smaller than a grapefruit, for $2.25 apiece.

These prices may be duplicated perhaps elsewhere in the world, but it is doubtful if the number of customers at these prices could be duplicated. The shops are crowded and the delivery wagons of Blank and Blank are busy all day long unloading hampers at the tradesmen's entrances of West End houses.

It is Spring, and the young man's fancy may turn to giving candy. No Mayfair buck would buy except at a certain shop in Bond street where they pack each piece of candy separately with a number and a name.

The cost is $3.00 a pound, but there it would be well to send a messenger because the crush of customers is so great it may take fifteen or twenty minutes to complete the purchase.

Britons, however, are accustomed to waiting for their good things. When a boy is born the doctor has hardly left the house before the father writes in to Eton with an application to admit his son. It will be thirteen years before the boy is old enough to go to Eton but thirteen years on the waiting list is the minimum for entrance.

Just so Britons today are ordering their automobiles. For the best British made car, costing a minimum of $12,500, it is necessary to get on a waiting list. The quickest deliveries this company has been able to make in the last year have been six months from the time of ordering. This, however, is very exceptional, and the average wait is a year.

In order to avoid this, as the salesman in a Bond street show-room explained, "Our customers usually, when they buy a car, tell us to put them down for the same car again two years later. So just yesterday a gentleman finally got his car—it was a $15,000 model, and he gave me at once an order for another like it in 1936."

Near this show-room was a tobacconist. In his window was a fat cedar box ticked 75 guineas. Seventy-five guineas are $393.75. The cedar box contained 100 cigars. Each cigar cost $3.93.

Next door was a firm dealing in traveling bags. One bag, a gentleman's fitted case, was priced at $120. However, the salesman was able to produce a better one for $1,977.50.

STEEL STRIKE THREAT HANGS OVER NATION

Union Labor Reaches "Show-Down" On Issue Today

WOULD KILL BUSINESS

By James L. Kilgallen

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, June 14—(INS)—

Union labor reached a "show-down" today on the issue of a steel strike.

Over the nation hung the menace of a business paralyzing walkout as more than 200 delegates from union lodges in many steel centers assembled in Pittsburgh for a special convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, at which ways and means of meeting the crisis will be decided.

A steel strike would directly affect 400,000 workers in the industry, endanger President Roosevelt's economic recovery program and possibly provoke a serious situation from the standpoint of law and order.

"Recognition of the union—or a strike."

That today seemed to be the attitude of many of the assembled labor leaders, particularly those representing new lodges which have come into the union within the past year.

Two elements within the Amalgamated Association divided the spotlight at today's special convention which was called following the collapse of negotiations in Washington last week when Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator, failed to bring capital and labor together. The elements are:

1.—The "Conservatives" headed by Michael F. Tighe, veteran president of the Amalgamated Association who says one of the cardinal principles of his organization is "conciliation."

2.—The "Rank and Filers" representing the "young blood" in the Amalgamated and who show less patience in dealing with the owners of the steel mills.

On the sidelines (for the present) is still another element, the most aggressive of all—the Steel and Metal Workers' Industrial Union, which Tighe charges is a Communistic organization. They are supposed to have no part in today's convention. They openly advocate "militant action."

The "Rank and Filers" hold the key to what the Amalgamated Association will do at a convention today.

International News Service talked to Wm. J. Spang, one of the spokesmen for the "rank and filers," and found him in a fighting mood. He hails from Duquesne, Pa., and is president of Fort Du Kane Lodge No. 187. "Du Kane is going to stand for only one thing—recognition of the union," he declared.

Spang scoffed at the claims of steel mill owners that 90 per cent of the workers do not want to strike; that a majority of these men are perfectly satisfied with "company unions."

Only the fixing of the time for calling the strike separates the nation from a steel walkout, unless President Roosevelt intervenes, in the opinion of Spang.

"Recognition of the union is the only government proposal we could accept," Spang asserted.

OVERLOADED TRUCK

Stanford Conway, 1431 N. 13th street, Philadelphia, was arrested here last night by Highway Motor Patrolman Hand, South Langhorne, for operating an overloaded truck. The vehicle was 11,700 pounds overweight. Conway was taken before Justice of Peace, James Guy, and fined $50 and costs.

NEW EAGLE—(INS)—Paving the way for obtaining PWA funds for erection of a new school building, voters of New Eagle borough have approved a $34,000 increase in the bonded indebtedness of the school district.

The Bristol Ford Agency will be closed tomorrow (Friday) afternoon to permit employees to witness the Ford V-8 contests, with other make cars, at the Langhorne race track. —(Adv.)

VIEWING OF ANTIQUES AND TOUR OF HISTORIC NEWTOWN BUILDINGS INTEREST 300 GUESTS OF NEW CENTURY CLUB AS "OPEN HOUSE" IS HELD

Students of Jr. High School Serve as Guides for Visitors

BAND CONCERT ALSO

Members of Club Loan Antique Pieces; Some of Great Value

NEWTOWN, June 14—The Newtown Century Club "did itself proud" yesterday when it acted as hostess to approximately 300 visitors throughout the day—its contribution to the borough's special week of activities marking the 250th anniversary of the founding of Newtown.

Members of the women's club, serving as aides at the club's headquarters on Center avenue, were garbed in costumes of colonial times. The guests, coming from all parts of Bucks County, and with four states included in the list, examined the antiques on display in the two rooms on the first floor, and were served with punch and wafers. The antique pieces, which were loaned for the occasion and which will also be on display today and tomorrow, included glassware, quilts, cabinets, samplers, old papers and deeds, chairs, dolls and doll furniture, articles of clothing, etc.

The club members who had arranged as a feature of the day a tour of the borough, with visits to historical buildings included, were aided by 12 boys and girls from the Newtown Junior high school who served as guides. The youthful guides, with their badges plainly visible, accompanied the visitors in the latter's automobiles, and pointed out spots of interest, telling something of the ancient and modern Newtown.

The tour included: The stone headquarters of the New Century Club on Center avenue (the starting point of the trip)—built in 1795, first used as a school by the Presbyterians, and later presented to the club by Mrs. Edward Hutchinson, then sold by the club to the Newtown National Bank from which bank the building is now leased by the club.

The Newtown Commons—Along the Neshaminy Creek, of which but one small section remains, this being the property of Newtown borough. The spot has been appropriately marked by Mrs. Anna Smith.

Washington's headquarters—The present building being very similar to when it was used by the Father of his Country. Washington spent two days in the building following the Battle of Trenton, December 25, 1776.

Old Presbyterian Chapel, located in Newtown Township, which is also celebrating its 200th anniversary this year. This structure is still used for Summer services.

Newtown Hall; Newtown Baptist Church; Council Chambers; the new building of the Newtown Title and Trust Company.

Brick Hotel—Which stands on the site of an earlier inn known as the "Red Lion." Its most prominent proprietor was Joseph Archambault, who had been an officer in Napoleon's army.

The Temperance House—Authorities vary as to the date of the erection of this building, but it is believed the first building was erected in 1722. The present structure is the work of several men, who added various parts from 1769 onward.

The Newtown Episcopal Church, which is 102 years old.

The "Old Yellow School House"—upon the site of which in 1827 stood the first free school house in Newtown.

The old Methodist School; the Methodist Church; the Newtown public school; the new Newtown Presbyterian Church built last year; the Railroad station.

The Newtown Library, the third oldest library in the state, founded in 1760. The building which houses the library at present was erected a few years ago.

Site of the court house when Newtown was the county seat. The buildings were erected over a period of years beginning with the court house in 1725. They faced on Center avenue, and a large stone residence and a double house in the rear are on the original foundations.

A GRADUATE

Eileen McGee

Here is the brief story of a hometown girl who, in spite of early and serious reverses, has made good. It concerns Eileen McGee of Bristol. In giving the details, Earl L. Brown, secretary of the local Moose Lodge No. 1169, 230 Washington street, said:

"Immediately after the death of Eileen's father, application was made to the Governors of Mooseheart by the lodge for the admission of the girl to the Moose Child City of Mooseheart, the internationally known trade and academic school, founded in 1913 by the Loyal Order of Moose, and located in Illinois, near Chicago. The application was granted, and Eileen was admitted in July, 1928. With her came her mother, and her brothers, Dennis and John. Dennis graduated in 1932, and Mrs. McGee and John are still at Mooseheart."

"For six years," continued Mr. Brown, "Eileen McGee has enjoyed all the privileges and opportunities of the Moose program of child welfare. This program means for every Mooseheart child the best of care in homelike surroundings, spiritual and moral training, and a sound education—both academic and vocational. In the latter, Eileen's vocational training has fitted her as a secretary."

"In addition," continued the secretary, "Eileen has received a broad cultural education in literature, music, and art, and she has learned to 'play the game' on the athletic fields of this noted child city."

According to the Mooseheart records, Eileen has shown conspicuous success in music.

Her veil was of tulle, edged with duchess lace, and fell from a cap of the lace. A cluster of orange blossoms was on either side of the cap. White satin sandals and a debutante bouquet of bridal roses and valley lilies completed her costume.

The attendants' costumes were also of mousseline de soie. That of Mrs. Rogers was baby blue in tone, and she carried a debutante bouquet of pink roses. Miss Lake wore a yellow and Miss Dreager a green-toned frock. They carried debutante bouquets of yellow roses. The hats of all attendants were picture effect leghorn ones, trimmed with sprays of flowers matching the individual gowns. They also wore matching organdie gloves.

ARRESTED SECOND TIME

Philadelphia, June 14—Arrested a second time when the amount he is alleged to have embezzled was found to be far greater than at first believed, Lester Humphreys, 37, Oakmont, Delaware County, faced arraignment here today. Accused of having appropriated $150,000 over a period of years from the Philadelphia office of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Humphreys, married and the father of two children, was taken into custody in Harrisburg and brought to this city last night. Six weeks ago Humphreys was held on $15,000 bail on embezzlement charges involving $36,000, although counsel for the company testified that his purported embezzlements amounted to $90,000. A further check of the books formerly kept by Humphreys disclosed a $159,100 shortage, police said.

EDGELEY WINS CROWN IN TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Win Championship When Independents Score Victory Over Jefferson A. C.

ST. ANN'S WINS GAME

Schedule for Tonight
INDEPENDENTS at EDGELEY

By T. M. Juno

The Edgely Braves became the first half champions of the Bristol Twilight League last night without playing. The reason for this was because Joe Rubino's Independent team scored a smashing 8-3 victory over the Jefferson A. C. on Leedom's field. It was the second consecutive loss for the Braves and eliminated them from the race.

The pitching of Joe Antonelli featured the Indies' victory. Joe gave the losers but three safe aways and should have had a shut-out victory. Errors at the wrong time by his mates gave the Mules their tallies. Antonelli's hooks and twisters had twice Jefferson batters hitting the breezes.

"Reds" McCurry was on the hill for the losers and likewise would have done a better job had his mates rallied to his support. Of the eight runs made by the winners only the two that came in the last frame were earned. The Indies made eight hits off McCurry.

The Hibernians threw away another ball game last night on St. Ann's field. This time the St. Ann's A. A. team was the recipient of the gift with the final count being 4-2.

Wild throws which were unnecessary gave the St. Ann's team their tallies and aided them to "chalk up" their fifth win of the campaign. Another reason for the Hibs' defeat was that they could not solve the offerings of "Charlie" Whyne.

Whyne held the Big Green to four hits. Two of these came from the bats of the first two batters and from then

Word Received of Death Of Former Resident Here

Word has been received here of the death of Samuel B. Eisenmann, 28, Teaneck, N. J., in an airplane crash near Junin, Argentina, on Monday.

Eisenmann was employed at the Keystone Aircraft plant here for a number of years and lived at 234 Mulberry street.

Eisenmann was co-pilot on the plane.

Six survivors of the crash in which four Americans and a Chilean were killed, told how they clung to wings of the plane for four hours to escape drowning.

The plane, operated by Pan-American Grace Airways, fell into a small lake Monday when two hours out of Buenos Aires on a flight to Santiago, Chile.

No boats were available, so the six survivors were forced to hold on to the wings until a launch was brought from some miles away. The six suffered from exposure.

START SECOND SECTION OF SUPER HIGHWAY

Work Gets Under Way On Stretch Through Langhorne Manor

WILL COST $269,967.00

LANGHORNE, June 14—Work has been started here on the section of the superhighway, Route 281, Section 2, which will link the portion completed to Janney last year to a point just east of this borough.

The successful bidders on this project, Dalton Brothers, Inc., of Paoli, have commenced operations with a crew of 30 men, and the work is to be completed within 120 working days. The number of laborers and skilled workers will soon be increased, it is stated, with 150 employed on the job at peak periods. This number will include about 75 per cent laborers, and 25 per cent skilled craftsmen.

The section to be built measures 3.02 miles, of a four-lane concrete road-bed. The width will be 40 feet with a 10-foot shoulder on either side, excepting through Langhorne borough where the entire width of the concrete will measure 56 feet.

Trees and underbrush have been cleared practically the entire length from Bellevue avenue East to a point intersecting the old Lincoln Highway. Today the workers will start such activities West of Bellevue avenue. Excavation is also being carried out, the total amount of excavation called for being 100,000 yards. This will be used for fill at other points along the new highway.

During this week the contractors will start work on a bridge over a small stream about 2,000 feet west of Bellevue avenue. There a box culvert is to be placed.

This portion of the new highway will join with the old Lincoln highway east of this borough, and it is expected temporarily a section of the old highway leading on out to Route 1 is to be widened to care for increased traffic.

It is announced that tomorrow bids will be let for erection of a bridge across the ravine, the present Lincoln Highway, and the railroad at Janney, this to connect the portion of highway completed last year with section 2 just started.

The balance of the super highway from the end of this project to Yardley will be cared for in a later contract.

Dalton Brothers, Inc., the successful bidders, named $269,967 for the 3.02 miles of highway.

"20 Million Sweethearts" Replete With Song Hits

The old days when audiences left a theatre whistling and humming will return when the First National picture, "Twenty Million Sweethearts" is shown at the Grand Theatre tonight and tomorrow.

Dick Powell, plus an elongated, waxed false mustache and a waiter's costume, starts his singing in the picture with the popular song, "The Man on the Flying Trapeze." The first part of the story discloses Dick as a singing waiter in a Hollywood cafe, and he carries out his part with all the gusto of the performers in Bob Perry's "Brass Rail," one of the show places of the film colony.

A revised version of "The Last Roundup" is rendered by a quartette of Hebrew comics who, with novelty, name their selection, "The Last Wind-Up."

One of the first shots of a large metropolitan radio station, when the course of the story first lands Dick there, affords a performance of the inimitable Mills Brothers as they render, "It Wasn't Told To Me—I Only Heard."

Ginger Rogers, as a radio performer, is heard as she sings "Out For No Good," the first Warren and Dubin music to be heard in the engaging picture. Ginger, formerly on the musical comedy stage, reveals a delightful singing voice.

Luxuries High in Great Britain But Freely Bought

Perhaps, however, the best index of Mayfair opulence is to be found in a certain lien store on Bond street. There the salesman was asked to show his best men's handkerchiefs. He produced an article of the ordinary size, hemstitched. It was, he explained, handwoven. No machine could handle such fine threads. One could read a newspaper through it. It cost ten dollars.

"When did you last sell any of these?" I asked the salesman.

"Oh," he replied, with that air of hauteur that only a Bond street salesman can evince, "A gentleman just yesterday placed an order with us for $1,000 worth of these handkerchiefs."

But British gentlemen are not the principal buyers in Mayfair. British ladies buy better. This is the London season. It opens with the Covent Garden Opera April 30th, and it ends with a royal garden party July 12th.

To go to Court a lady must wear a uniform just as precisely specified as those of the gentlemen. It consists of a court dress, cut somewhat severely and according to a style that would be approved by Her Majesty the Queen; a train; a cloak; an odd head-dress with feathers which do not become every lady must be worn; bouquet and so on.

A Bond street model salon furnished figures for the minimum cost of dressing a lady to go to court. To do it as cheaply as possible would cost for the dress $200, cloak $150, feathers and head-dress $40, bouquet $10, gloves $10, shoes $25, stockings $5, a total of $440.

Then comes at least $15 for beauty parlor and $25 for the hire of a motor-car and $5 tips, making a minimum of $485. "But," the Bond street authority explained, "the actual average would run nearer a total of $1,000."

At the minimum, however, one may reckon a flat $500 per lady. Guests of their majesties at the four courts of the season number around 2,000 ladies. The cheapest valuation of the clothing of these ladies is $1,000,000. But this, as Mayfair friends protested, is a ridiculous undervaluation.

A visit to the Blue Train restaurant after Court one night proved it. Prince George was there, and a party of friends, guests of the Marquis de Casa Mare. Feathered headdresses nodded all over the place. Ladies came in, and more ladies until the last table was crowded. Mink was the poorest fur in sight and sable was as common as squirrel elsewhere.

The London newspapers print pages of description of what the ladies wear. Excluding the royal circle and the diplomatic corps, at one Court around 400 ladies were thus minutely described. More than 100 wore jewels considered worth mentioning. Diamonds were favorite, with pearls and sapphires next. A qualified observer who knows his London well estimates that the figures $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 would be a fair range for the total sums expended by the ladies at the four Courts of their majesties for their clothing and jewels alone.

A calendar of the London season is issued. It contains only the most prominent events, and mentions the private parties of only those persons who have been presented at Court. This limits it to only a small fraction of the number of social affairs which actually take place.

Nevertheless, for the ten weeks of this season there are listed 175 formal balls and dances and 130 formal dinners. Guests at some of the balls number into the thousands. An average of 200 guests would be low. An attendance of 35,000 at the season's balls would be a reasonable estimate.

All these are evidences of the prosperity of the upper classes. In no country in the western world is the line of distinction between upper and lower classes so sharply drawn as in England. But how are the lower classes, how are the people faring in Britain's comeback?

A magistrate near Manchester has just sentenced a sixty-year-old woman to two months in the workhouse for stealing a pint of milk. The old woman declared she had been seized with a fainting spell. The magistrate said he regretted but he was compelled to impose sentence.

Is this typical of British social justice? It is not. True, while Mayfair buys peaches at $1.90 each the authorities concerned with unemployment have just established that it ought not to cost more than $1.38 to provide the food for one unemployed man for a week.

But for the last two decades Britain has supported its unemployed on a higher standard of living than the jobless in any other country. Today, despite the comeback, there are still around 2,200,000 unemployed. They are all being given a dole which certainly suffices for their existence, and obviously has sufficed to keep them quieter than in any other country during the world economic depression. Britain's recipe for treating the jobless is worth further consideration.

But the unemployed are only a little more than 2,000,000. The employed workers number today 10,140,000. In the boom year 1929 they numbered 10,220,000. Britain is giving employment today to virtually the same number as in the most prosperous post-war year.

Today the position is such that the excess of unemployed in 1934 over 1929 is largely to be ascribed to the increase in population. Judged from the standard of the number of people at work, Britain will have come back completely only when she has given work to the surplus.

But how are the vast majority, the people with jobs, faring under British recovery? Since 1929 the cost of living has gone down in Britain from an index of 160 to an index of 140 taking 1914 as 100. Money wages have declined an infinitesimal 2 per cent. since 1929 but measured in purchasing power, real wages have gone up to 120, taking 1924 as 100, and the statistics of the Ministry of Labor as authority.

Hence the man at work in Britain today, granted that he has as much work to do, is actually better off than he was in 1929. The jobless man is being supported at a tolerable minimum of existence. The upper classes are living luxuriously.

Where is the money coming from? What are the sources of the British wealth which in this second year of recovery already permits a few to live extremely well, the vast majority to live better than they did in 1929, and at the same time support more than 2,000,000 jobless? In the following articles an attempt will be made to trace the course of the British comeback.

Miss Haldeman's home—the house being at present about as it was in colonial times. One of the oldest homes in the borough.

Friends Meeting house. Building which was the home of Bucks County Treasurer Hart. In this structure the Doan outlaws trussed up the family of Mr. Hart in 1781 and compelled the treasurer to part with the county funds.

Bird-in-hand Tavern—From 1726 until 1812 this structure was known as the "Old Frame House." The small windows and the widely overhanging roof are features of the architecture. The tour of the business section included the Newtown National Bank, the present places of business and public buildings.

The committee in charge of the day's program included Mrs. W. A. Roberts and Mrs. Edgar Briggs, who were ably assisted by the club members.

The officers of the Newtown New Century Club are: President, Mrs. Reuben Kester; vice president, Mrs. Robert Cooke; secretary, Mrs. John Goodnoe; treasurer, Mrs. Fabian. Last evening a free band concert was given on the lawn of the club building.

WEIGHT REDUCED FROM 180 TO 137

"Wonderful," She Says

Here's today's story of a woman who knew she carried too much fat and decided the right way to get rid of it—just a few words that wise fat folks should heed—worth reading. "I use Kruschen Salts to reduce. It's wonderful. Take it daily and eat what I want and still lose. I did weigh 180, now 137. Want to get down to 125." Mrs. Leonard Bass, Ft. Atkinson, Wis., Feb. 6, 1934.

When you take one half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water—you not only lose in weight but you put healthy activity into your whole body—you feel younger and look it—get it at any drugstore in the world.—(Adv.)

Life Insurance Pays

During the depression many of the things people prized proved of little value. Dividends on many shares ceased; bonds defaulted and interest ceased; commodities dwindled in value; there seemed to be no real worth in anything except life insurance.

When other things failed, life insurance was steadfast. It never failed to perform its duty to those who insured. It proved to be the best investment anyone could make.

Our companies paid all just claims promptly.

We list some of those we paid in the months of April and May.

Are you all in? If you lack energy, lose sleep, feel nervous and generally unfit, you should begin treatment at once with PERSENECO, the powerful tonic containing four animal gland extracts with other ingredients, properly balanced to renew normal action of vital forces. Remember! You are only as vigorous as your glands. PERSENECO renews weak glands. It is the logical treatment for men who realize they need an agent of this kind. Ask for circular.

Edgely Wins Crown In Twilight League

on no one but Jimmy Cooper could solve his slants. Cooper made two hits, one a line single to right which scored a run in the fourth inning.

Snyder was charged with the defeat after holding the Saints to six hits. Two runs in the fourth caused his defeat.

The Hibernians took a one-run edge in the first when Flynn opened with a single. Joe Dougherty followed with a hit to left and when Pico missed the throw at third, Flynn coming home, Roe fled to right. Flynn coming home after the catch. F. Dougherty hit to Stallone and J. Dougherty was nipped at the plate. Snyder was passed but Gaffney fled to Fields.

St. Ann's retaliated with a run in their turn. Fields reached first when Roe dropped Flynn's throw. DiBlassio forced Fields. Pico singled to left and when Gaffney allowed the ball to roll between his legs, DiBlassio scored. Oriola also singled but Angelo fled out and Whyno struck out.

Both teams scored in the fourth. Pico made a two-base wild throw. Snyder's grounder and Cooper's hit gave the Hibs their tally while the Saints scored twice when Dugan misjudged Angelo's fly and Whyno hit to Snyder and both runners were safe on the hurler's late throw to second. Bernice bunted and Snyder threw wild to third, Angelo scoring. Stallone rolled out and Whyno scored on Dougherty's error of Roe's throw to the plate.

To make victory certain St. Ann's put across another tally in the fifth. With one out, Pico took two bases on Flynn's error and scored when Oriola singled to left.

Cooper was the star of the game. Playing second base for the losers, he handed eight chances flawlessly.

KEEPS PACE WITH YOUNG

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah—(INS)—Old fogies who insist that the younger generation is going to the dogs would learn otherwise if they would try to keep up with them, Mrs. D. R. Wheelwright, oldest member of the University of Utah graduation class, declared. At the age of 59, she pointed out, she was receiving her bachelor's degree. Two of her sons have already obtained their master's degrees, and the other two are college graduates.

PLANT GLADS FOR SUCCESSIVE CROPS

There never will be too many gladoli about the garden. While they are relegated chiefly to the realm of cutting plants they have a decorative garden value that should not be overlooked. A supply should be tucked in all about the garden, to be allowed to bloom for decoration and not for cutting.

The graceful spikes of the primulinus hybrids are fine for garden effect. The stiffer spikes of the larger and more robust growing hybrids lack the grace of the more slender primus. For garden effect glads should be planted in clumps of a single color. The background and companion plantings of blooming annuals or perennials should also be considered in the planting. Beautiful effects are created by planting pink or yellow and salmon glads with the lavender background of the sea lavender, statice. Rosy Morn petunias with pink glads is another favorite combination, the petunias repeating the color of the glads rising above them. The light blue bedding petunias are also effective as a ground planting for the pink glads.

Give the glad good soil and set the bulbs five inches deep. For exhibition bloom extra care will be needed. There are several books devoted to the culture of gladioli and giving elaborate details as to the best methods of growing show spikes. E. F. Rockwell's Little gladioli book is one of the most practical of these, being small and easily carried in the pocket for garden reference.

The newer primulinus hybrids have attained a size under the skilled handling of plant breeders which rivals the older stamps and at the same time retaining the graceful spike and hooded flowers which are so characteristic of this species. The yellows and oranges in the primus are the finest in the whole gladioli race.

Plant glads freely for garden color. They come in midsummer to give new life and beauty to the garden just as other plants begin to show the effects of summer heat and before the fall glory of the asters and other composites take command of the garden picture.

A gladioli will grow and bloom almost anywhere but no plant is more responsive to good culture.

HITLER AND MUSSOLINI MEET

By H. R. Knickerbocker
(Copyrighted, 1934, by I. N. S.)
Venice, June 14—Adolph Hitler, Chancellor of Germany, stepped out of a tri-motored Junkers plane into the blinding sunshine at the Lido Airport here today.

Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy set forth his hand in a stiff-armed salute; Hitler lifted his hand in his characteristic limp gesture; they shook hands. Hitler smiled faintly, a little nervous. Mussolini gravely spoke a few words in German. The two dictators had met.

From the Fascist side the reception was strictly military; from the German side it was purely civilian. For this event of prime importance for Italy, Germany and Europe as a whole, the police allowed precisely no public to be present. Assembled before the hangar at the flying field were 320 odd persons; 220 of them wore uniforms. There were 120 privates and 100 generals and admirals and black-shirted Fascist officers. Half an hour ahead of time Mussolini appeared and marched with his typical swagger and spring at the head of four companies of soldiers, sailors, marines and Fascists.

As the two Junkers airplanes descended and Hitler emerged there was no cheering but a dead silence.

Behind the cordiality of the two dictators lay the discussion of importance that just over the northern border, Austria is suffering anew from a wave of Nazi terror. Together for the first time today are the man who wants that terror stopped and the man who could stop it if he would.

SHORT CUTS TO THE DINNER TABLE

By Vera A. Schneider

Suppose we have a few suggestions today for the picnic basket. Before long, you know, picnics in the wide open spaces will be the order of the day and to have a few ideas and recipes tucked in the back of one's mind will help when we decide rather hurriedly that it's a good day for a picnic.

First let us remember that a good healthy sized sandwich always appeals to the men folks. Use thought in your selection of bread, making sure that you have gotten a bread rich in nourishment. This, of course, can be done if you make sure the bread you purchase has been made with more butter than is usual in the ordinary loaf of bread; that the flour has been manufactured from choice wheat, thereby insuring nutriment, and that additional richness is added to the bread because milk has been used in the formula.

Let us start the luncheon basket with dried beef sandwiches? A dried beef sandwich can be truly delicious if the beef is sliced very very thin and then placed between slices of buttered whole wheat or rye bread. But, of course, we shall want a variety of sandwiches, so shall we include several made with luncheon roll with sliced sweet pickle? Also watercress and mayonnaise sandwiches make a delightful addition to the picnic basket.

The sandwiches being decided upon, shall we build the remainder of the menu? I think deviled eggs, or just hard cooked eggs, always lend themselves nicely to the picnic fare, along with tomatoes, olives and pickles. And, of course, no picnic is complete without mother making a cake, and I'll give you right here and now, a recipe for a delicious chocolate cake, and yet one that is not expensive.
